

MANAGING REMOTE AND HYBRID TEAMS

As more ambiguity and uncertainty about the return to the office develops, it is even more important for leaders and managers to instill confidence, inspiration, focus, and stability within their teams. For the foreseeable future, employees are likely to experience a heightened degree of anxiety regarding health, job security, and the need for normalcy while working remotely and in the office. Leaders and managers play an important role in helping to alleviate stress while engaging and building strength within their teams.

Loeb Leadership's Managing Remote & Hybrid Teams workshop was designed to inspire and equip leaders and managers to keep their employees engaged, build trust, maintain communication, hold themselves and their team accountable, and create an inclusive productive environment.

COURSE: This workshop provides an interactive format for learners to explore and understand the crucial aspects and challenges of managing remote and hybrid teams. Participants will be able to share their challenges and learn some of the best practices to overcome them.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

By the end of this workshop, participants will:

- Better understand the challenges of managing or supervising remote workers
- Have an increased awareness of best practices related to engaging remote workers
- Be able to create an effective “hybrid-friendly” environment
- Have specific tips they can adopt immediately to increase their effectiveness
